WILD BIRD GUIDE

Get to know the wild birds that are regular visitors to gardens in the UK.

NESTING TIPS

- Place the nesting box in a quiet, safe place out of the reach of predators, and sheltered from the elements and direct sunlight.
- In unsheltered areas, the box should be tilted slightly forward to channel rain water away from the opening.
- The best position is fixed to a tree or wall, 2 – 5m (6 – 16ft) up.
- Clean nesting boxes between September and January, ready for the breeding season.
- Do not disturb the box between February and August as this is when it is most likely to be occupied.
- A close supply of nesting material will encourage birds to set up home.

PREMIUM FOOD RANGE

Bringing with them life, colour and song, wild birds are a welcome visitor to any garden. Observing their delicate and cheeky characters offers a connection with nature for all walks of life.

The Nature's Feast range includes a wide choice of food, treats and accessories, designed specifically to help encourage and support wild birds. From Premium to Value ranges of feeders and food, Nature's Feast has something to suit every user, from the bird enthusiast to the casual feeder to, of course, the birds themselves.

WHEN TO FEED

With the depletion of natural food sources due to housing and industrial development, the consistent provision of nutritious food all year round is increasingly vital for garden wildlife to thrive. Adjust the type of food you offer to suit the season - mealworms are ideal for new baby birds and should be made available during the spring breeding season, and high energy foods such as peanuts and suet treats are best served in winter.

FEEDING TIPS

- Always maintain a continuous supply of fresh food, as birds will come to depend on the food you put out.
- Consider different foods and feeding methods. Some birds can hang from feeders while others may prefer table or ground feeding.
- Only put out as much food as will be consumed in one or two days.
- Fresh, clean water should always be available.
- Feeding stations should ideally be located near cover. If there is a risk from cats or other predators, a greater distance or height should be allowed.
- Food should be stored in a cool, dry place.

HYGIENE

- When feeding wild birds it is important to maintain a hygienic environment:
- Ensure feeding stations are regularly cleaned with warm water and ideally a safe disinfectant.
- Remove any wet or old food as soon as possible to avoid the build up of bacteria, moulds or toxins.
- Help further reduce the risk of bacterial build up by having several feeding areas and relocating them regularly.
- Wear gloves and wash your hands thoroughly after handling products.
